PROFILE

Celine Bartlett is a highly experienced Paediatric Occupational Therapist with over 16 years of expertise supporting children, young people, and families across health, education, and care settings.

Celine specialises in working with children with neurodevelopmental conditions, sensory processing challenges, emotional and behavioural needs, and physical disabilities. She is a qualified Sensory Integration Therapist and is also trained in Sensory Attachment Intervention, Neurodramatic Play, and trauma-informed approaches.

Throughout her career, Celine has led multi-disciplinary teams and played a pivotal role in developing and delivering integrated therapy services within schools, the NHS, and residential settings. Her approach is holistic and child-centred, focusing on building confidence, independence, and resilience in every young person she works with.

Celine is known for her warmth, deep clinical knowledge, and commitment to evidence-based practice. She works in close partnership with families, educators, and professionals to ensure that every child's needs are met in a way that is meaningful and sustainable.

Her areas of expertise include:

- Sensory integration therapy
- Neurodevelopmental and emotional regulation support
- Service and pathway development in education settings
- Parent and staff coaching and training
- Multi-disciplinary team coordination
- Specialist assessments and care planning

Celine is passionate about empowering children and their families to thrive – not just in therapy, but in everyday life.
